

MARTIN LUTHER KING SENT TO PRISON IN GEORGIA

UGF CAMPAIGN is well underway because of the help of the PTA presidents of the local area. Among the workers are, from left, Mrs. Aura Lee Gray, PTA president of the Johnson Elementary School; James Moxie, PTA president of the Robertson School; and Mrs. Fannie M. Frazier, PTA president of Martin School. All have participated in the organizational planning. The Territorial Residential Drive has been divided into 15 school areas. Each PTA president has secured Area Captains and Chairmen totaling 160 individuals. They in turn are cooperating with more than 1,000 volunteer workers who are making a door-to-door canvass of all residents.

Dr. Jackson, Founders' Day Speaker Urges Racial Elevation

By LOIS N. ALFORD
Dr. J. H. Jackson, president of National Baptist Convention, told a Jackson State College Founders' Day audience Sunday there is too much talk of "racial integration" and not enough of "racial elevation."

A record crowd at the 83rd Founders' Day program at College Park Auditorium heard the Chicago pastor and president of the Convention of four million Negroes speak on "The Task of Racial Elevation." He said that no society nor government lifts a people, but they must struggle, sacrifice, and climb themselves. "The center of the responsibility is with us," he said.

He based his speech on three points: Negroes must "be bold and frankly face their own shortcomings," they must "develop the technique of appreciating themselves and their talents, and be proud of their race," and they must realize the cause is greater than individuals in it.

He spoke against sit-in demonstrations in stores and "kneel-ins" in churches. "If you have religion in your church," he said, "use it. Don't go kneeling in somebody else's church."

"It is difficult for a race to face those things we still must conquer," he said. He added divisions among Negroes themselves still exist because they were brought from many tribes and cultures before they had a chance to unite as a race.

Regarding sit-ins, Dr. Jackson said, "You can't get anywhere by just sitting down. Even if you do put a store out of business, what have you gained?"

He said overcoming crime and juvenile delinquency could not be accomplished "by counting the crimes of others."

He said no race could move forward unless it appreciates itself, adding that while Negroes want everything the Constitution promises, "we must not compromise, but we must learn to appreciate and respect what we have."

He said the Negro's cause was America's cause, and the cause must be "anchored in the Christian tradition."

Following the address, president Lee Williams of the National Alumni Foundation presented a gift of $3600 to JSC President J. L. Reddix.

Dr. E. Gray Izard of the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning presented keys to new campus buildings to Pres. Reddix.

The new buildings represent a state investment of $1,200,000.

According to news received this week, the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., 31-year-old internationally known integration leader was sentenced, Wed., Oct. 26, to the Reidsville State Prison, 211 miles southeast of Atlanta, Ga., to serve a four month term for a traffic violation. This quick transfer of the noted leader from the DeKalb County jail

BULLETIN

Just before Press time, Thursday, October 27, news was received that the Rev. Martin Luther King had been released from the Georgia prison. At this time, no other details concerning the release were available by this paper.

in Decatur, Ga., a suburb of Atlanta, caught his attorneys by surprise. They did not know of his removal for the jail until they went into court Wednesday morning to ask that the sentence be vacated. A hearing on a request that King be released on bond pending an appeal was scheduled for Thursday morning, Oct. 27.

Dr. King who gained fame in the successful Montgomery bus boycott was arrested in DeKalb County, May 1, on charges of driving without a Georgia driver's license. He drew a fine of $25.00 and a 12-months suspended sentence. The suspension was contingent upon his not violating any state, federal or local laws for the 12-month period.

Last week, Dr. King was arrested during a sit-in demonstration at an Atlanta department store cafeteria. He was charged under Georgia's new anti-trespass law, enacted specially to curb such protests. Floods of protests against his arrest were sent to Atlanta officials and the trespass charges were dropped. But before he could be released he was claimed by DeKalb County on grounds that he had violated terms of his probation sentence.

College students who were jailed at the same time with Dr. King were denied the use of textbooks in their cells, but Dr. King was permitted to keep the Bible he was carrying at the time of his arrest.

Stringer Lodge Sends 7 Students To Jackson State

Seven students, three of them freshmen, are attending Jackson State College on scholarship granted by the M. W. Stringer Grand Lodge F. and AM Jurisdiction of Mississippi. Know Your Principal...

Editor's Note: This is the 4th in a series of articles designed to acquaint the general public and especially the parents with the men and women who head the various schools in Jackson. It is hoped that this effort will bring about a better spirit of cooperation from the parents as these principals and teachers strive so hard to make good citizens out of the boys and girls entrusted in their care.

This week we salute PRINCIPAL JAMES BERNARD SMITH... a native Hinds Countian, who received his elementary education in the Hinds County Public Schools. He then entered Lanier High School where the requirements for high school graduation were successfully completed. After completing one year of college work at Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College, a teaching position in the Hinds County Public Schools was accepted. Having served in the capacity of principal for seven years, his service (Continued on Page 2)

Owen Re-elected By Tennessee Baptists

Dr. S. A. Owen, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, was elected to a twenty-fifth term as president of the Tennessee Baptist Missionary and Educational Convention this week at the eighty-eighth session of the convention, held in Jackson.

Dr. Owen had submitted his resignation as president, after a report of the nominating committee which named him as president was adopted, but a motion prevailed that the resignation be tabled.

The convention also voted the establishment of a headquarters at Owen College. The headquarters will be directed by Dr. H. Clarke Nabrit, director of finance of the convention, and pastor of the First Baptist Church, Lauderdale Street.

A Baptist Education Fund Commission was established to promote the work of Owen College and other educational objectives of the convention. Rev. H. H. Harper, pastor of St. Matthew Baptist church, was named chairman of the Commission. Owen College is operated by the Tennessee B. M. & E. Convention.

A system of monthly church reports to the convention was adopted. The convention adopted a budget of $90,000, of (Continued on Page 2)

Tone Magazine, A Milestone In Journalism; Readers Get Added Plus, In Local Papers

The "MIRACLE OF TONE" is no longer a miracle. The nation's fastest growing supplement which is currently being distributed in more than 40 newspapers and with a circulation of 300,000 has had phenomenal growth since its first issue 11 months ago.

Produced independently by TONE Publications, Inc., headed by brilliant young publisher, Donald W. McIlvaine, former commercial artist, TONE, with its bright new format continues its spectacular pace. Published in Chicago, the nucleus of TONE's staff includes Carl Smith, Manager Editor; Chuck Leonard, Associate Editor; and Edgar M. Harris, Advertising Manager.

TONE started with thirteen newspapers in January of 1960, with a print order of 40,000 copies. In less than three months TONE increased its print order to 105,000 copies and today is now at the 300,000 mark with 43 subscribing newspapers.

This rapid growth is attributed to the keen desire of Negro newspaper publishers throughout America to enhance their papers with a sparkling supplement, and to the enthusiastic reception of readers throughout the country who called TONE an amazing step forward in the field of journalism.

Fresh new magazine format and consistent teamwork are the ingredients responsible for TONE's upward surge. Says McIlvaine "Our magazine is new and different, editorially it appeals to the social, cultured and recreation interest of modern day Negroes. It is a lively package with splendid reproduction. We vow to make TONE a vital part of its distributing newspapers and the communities they serve."
